UNITED STATES IS TO PRESS FOR UNITED NATIONS SANCTIONS AGAINST NORTH KOREAN COMMUNISTS IN SPITE OF INDICATIONS EARLY COLLAPSE IS FACED

Extent to Which U. S. May Intervene Expected To Be Known Today

VIEWS BY AUSTIN

Is In Position to Speak with Authority on Truman's Plans

By Pierre J. Hux
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., June 27—(INS)—The United States will press today for UN sanctions against the North Korean Communists despite indications that South Korean resistance faces early collapse.

The extent to which the U. S. may be planning to intervene militarily, politically and economically in the Korean crisis is expected to be made known partially in this afternoon's meeting of the Security Council.

U. S. Representative Warren R. Austin will present the latest views of the American Government. He is in a position to speak with authority on President Truman's plans and those of Secretary of State Acheson as the result of an emergency trip to Washington of his deputy, Ambassador Ernest A. Gross.

The former key advisor to the State Department returned from all-day conferences with top-level officials in Washington and briefed Austin on the immediate steps the United States is anxious to take in Korea. The primary factor in this is the awareness that the Security Council must expect defiance from the Korean Communists of the Sunday edict ordering a cease-fire and immediate withdrawal to the 38th parallel.

A second factor is that while Gross was conferring in Washington, Austin and his aides canvassed every member of the Security Council except Russia on the extent of support to be looked for from their respective governments in any measures to be undertaken.

The measures themselves fall within the framework of Chapter VII of the U. N. Charter, a basis of procedure upon which the U. S. stands despite adverse developments in Korea.

KOREAN NAVY READY FOR INVADERS

IN THIS RECENT PHOTO, a gunner of South Korea's navy trains his weapon on the "foe" during maneuvers. The sea battles were able to hold the occasional Red intruders from the north in check until the Communist general offensive. Reports from the embattled country declare the South Koreans smashed one attempted landing. (International)

GLEANEY BY SCRIBES

Opening of bids for the construction of a new elementary school in Warrington township took place at the end of the week in Harrisburg by the Pennsylvania School Authority.

The lowest bidders are to be contacted in reference to bonds and other details in a few days. Most bidders are from the Philadelphia area.

County Superintendent Charles H. Boehm, who accompanied three members of the Warrington School Board, to Harrisburg, stated that the total bid for general construction, grading, electrical work, heating, plumbing and cafeteria equipment was $180,931.

Directors attending the meeting were Frank Carroll, president of the board; G. Leroy Shutt, the secretary; and Mrs. Margaret Hutchcroft.

It is expected the low bidders will have signed their agreements within two weeks, and construction, it is expected, will begin by the middle of next month.

The structure will consist of six over-size classrooms, a health room, office and a multiple purpose room. The latter will include an assembly hall, small stage and a fully equipped kitchen.

The building will be situated on an eight-acre tract on the Barnes Continued on Page Three

HOUSE RISES LIKE PHOENIX FROM ASHES

Clark Family At Croydon
Just Can't Believe What Eyes Show Them

TOOLS LAID DOWN

CROYDON, June 27 — Had anyone told Raymond Clark and family last Wednesday that by yesterday—five days later—the house they were then living in would become a shambles by fire, that all goods would be destroyed, and that by this very day a new home would have risen (like the phoenix from the ashes) complete with all equipment and furnishings, it is hard to conjecture what the reply might have been.

But with American neighborliness not being a thing entirely of the past—that very thing has happened. The Clarks can scarcely believe their own eyes when they pass the site.

The Bartz Brothers, builders, together with their volunteer helpers—the latter group being skilled, semi-skilled and otherwise (but all with their heart in the job at hand) went off the project last night. The work was done and commendably so, and tools were laid Continued on Page Three

Aeromodelers Attend A Model Contest At Capital

Several Aeromodelers attended a large model contest and air show on Sunday at Washington, D. C. Keen competition from contestants of 11 states and the District of Columbia prevented prizes being taken by the Bristol group. Contestants at the meet were thrilled by exhibitions of army "sabre-jet" fighters, B-45 jet bombers and rocket exhibits, as well as the appearance of Arthur Godfrey who acted as afternoon master of ceremonies.

A model flying session will be held tomorrow evening at the model airport. If the weather is inclement an indoor meeting will be held.

BOAT YARDS ARE BUSTLING WITH ACTIVITY FOLLOWING RETARDED PERIOD CAUSED BY WET SPRINGTIME; HIBERNATION NOW OVER

CROYDON, June 27 — A wet spring slowed down activity among the half dozen boat yards that usually make the lower Neshaminy creek into a bustling miniature seaport at this time of year.

Traditionally, Memorial day finds nearly all of the boats which have spent the winter months hibernating ashore freshly painted, refinished and out on the waterways.

This year, however, most of the boats were until recently in storage waiting for a spell of good weather so that canvases could be pulled off and chipping knives and paint brushes put into action.

The early warm weather months are one of the two times during the year when the boat yards find themselves working full swing. The other period is during the fall, when the boats come back from their voyaging and are made ready for winter storage.

The crafts, some of them as large as 50 feet in length, are then hauled up from the water on supports pulled along railroad tracks and are buttressed ashore on wooden platforms. During the winter months motors are overhauled, loosened boards strengthened and general repairs done.

Many of the boat yards have been on the Neshaminy for a good many years. Cyrillus Seyfert, surviving partner of the Seyfert and Wright yard, near the mouth of the creek, has been handling crafts of all types for 45 years.

About 40 boats make their winter home in the Seyfert yard, many of them big cabin cruisers measuring up to 50 feet in length. Most of the boats are owned by yachtsmen from Philadelphia and other places along the Delaware river.

George Cowan has had his Croydon boat yard on the east side of State road for more than 18 years. He too does extensive work on boats during the off-season. The largest craft in his yard is about 20 feet long.

Shipping boats to distant places by all types of transportation seems to be a specialty of Cowan's. Recently two large boats were shipped to Canada. He packs and crates them in sturdy fashion and sends them off to wherever the owners happen to have wandered.

Across State road, also on the Croydon side of the creek, is Manly's Kitson's boat yard, which usually stores about 15 boats during a season.

Some of the boats in the Kitson yard are big craft capable of ocean travel. Most of them are owned by boatmen living in Philadelphia.

On the other side of the Neshaminy at the Creekside boat yard Harry W. Schurr seems to have found a solution to the offseason doldrums at the yard. He keeps an automobile business going during the times when boat yard activity slackens up. He's been in the boat business since 1945.

About 19 boats are kept at the Schurr yard. Some of the owners live in places like Paoli, West Point, Pa., Camden and Glenside, Amy, a 27-foot watercraft owned by a Philadelphia boatman, was launched at the yard last Saturday.

DECIBELS IN JUNE

In Philadelphia they are giving out, with marriage licenses, a polite missive from the police department under the title "Unnecessary Sounding of Horns." It cites the illegality of doing so, and winds up with this:

"The Philadelphia police take this opportunity to request that you and your wedding party abide by the above rules while driving on the streets and highways, especially during your contemplated nuptials."

This idea was practiced in Bristol several years ago.

There, now — what could be a gentler or more persuasive way of getting the drivers of happy bridal caravans to keep their big mitts off the horn rings? Police are notoriously soft-hearted where young love comes within their purview. But how could they ignore the complaints?

You can't hear on the telephone, you can't even hear yourself think, when a long string of horn-blowing cars comes by. The noise distracts the attention of other drivers from what they're doing. If their lips are seen to move, are they really blessing the happy young couple?

Police everywhere think the Philly police have an idea worth trying. So maybe would the newly-wedded pair themselves, years later, when the sound effects of their children add to the mounting decibels of life.

Noise-making to badger a newly married pair at night is, of course, an ancient custom brought from Europe. The French charivari—the mock serenade of banging on pots and pans—became the "shivaree" of Louisiana. Staunch upholders of folk customs, we nevertheless make an exception of the horn-blowing serenade in broad daylight on city streets. Time and place do not seem appropriate.

WATCH HIM

A large portion of the populace will take to motor cars for trips to points far and near over the long week-end. Highways will carry more than their normal volume of traffic. Many drivers will be careless, some because of high spirits incident to a holiday, others because they are habitually unthinking when behind a steering wheel. A few will be under the influence of liquor.

Most drivers are responsible and obey all the rules of safe driving as a matter of custom. In the next four days an unusual burden will be upon them. It is the necessity of watching not only their own driving but that of others. The selfish motorist depends upon others yielding to him. And yielding, regardless of how irksome because of the crass disregard of one's rights, is the only way to promote safety. The meek in traffic have a better chance of getting home alive than do the road hogs.

It will be especially important to watch the other driver this traffic-jammed week-end. It is imperative that every driver be prepared for any hare-brained highway maneuver.

For a United Family Learn To Celebrate Each Success

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, Ph.D.

"CELEBRATE successes" is a good slogan in the family. A favorable background for furthering desirable conduct in the growing child through deserved approvals is a pair of parents who, even from their pre-marriage days, have built each other up by dwelling on his or her strengths; by generous use of honest compliments, by each celebrating the successes of the other. More favorable is this background if each parent is rarely heard belittling or criticizing other persons, but are often heard speaking with satisfaction and appreciation of their good qualities and achievements. Parents practiced at bringing out the best in each other and at seeing and talking about the best in other adults are, on that account, the more disposed also to see and emphasize the best in their own children.

We are not applauding here the parents who, when other adults disapprove them for some wrong conduct in their children, act as if these children could do no wrong. Such parents are merely trying to protect their own pride. They reveal to their children their hypocrisy. Instead, we are praising parents who keep their eyes open to all the good deeds and traits in their children and let their children know they do. We are talking of parents who see the best in their children as surely as they see the worst, and approve this best as certainly and as strongly as they disapprove the worst. Such parents may have a lot of the Divine in them.

Express Pleasure

It's human to see the wrongs in our children and to show them our displeasure over these wrongs more readily than to see the rights and express our pleasure over these rights. The virtues in our children (and other loved ones) we take for granted; their vices stir us up, arouse our anger and rebukes. For every deserving praise we give them we are wont to utter twenty blames. Yet during almost any day a child does a hundred praise-worthy things to one blame-worthy.

It takes little or no intelligence, certainly no effort, to see what we dislike in a child and to disapprove it. We have to be mentally alert and exercise a lot of struggle to see and appreciate the specific things we like in the child, and still more struggle to let him know we have seen and appreciated them. Honest compliments and approvals run counter to our native urges. But they do help to build another up. To that degree they may seem to diminish our sense of superiority—the reason why we fail to compliment honestly our closest friends or loved ones as often as we should and express to them our satisfaction over their virtues, achievements and successes.

"Blind me to the little errors of my children and help me to see the good things that they do. Give me a ready word for honest praise." These statements are from the prayer I once wrote for myself as parent (a copy of which may be had in a stamped envelope sent me in care of this paper).

But won't it make the child conceited to praise him too much? So it may if we make blanket praises, if we often tell him or others in his presence that he has been a good child. Often such a general statement is far from the truth. But if we make it a habit to pick out specific instances of good conduct, specific circumstances where the child by effort did what we considered meritorious, we help make him want to repeat such good conduct. For example, if we say to Jim, four, that we liked the way he helped his baby sister don her coat and rubbers; to Cynthia, six, that it was fine of her to help her mother set the table without being asked, or to Bob, eight, that in giving his seat to the old man in the trolley car he acted nobly, we have made good conduct more desirable to each.

ONTARIO, Ore.—(INS)—Two expert anglers' most unusual catch was a cat they spotted swimming in the middle of Owyhee dam lake. They used an oar instead of a rod to pull it out and found the animal was a game-killing lynx out for a bounty on its head. Al Andrews and Van Campbell did not collect on this one.

Boat Yards Are Bustling with Activity

Kovitch, who is beginning his fourth season with his sons at the sunnyside boat yard. Kovitch also has boats from distant places such as Easton and Allentown.

About 45 boats a season are stored at Sunnyside, the largest this year being a 33 footer. Kovitch has a trim 17-foot inboard outboard cabin cruiser and is planning to set up a shop to build several more.

Cherry's boat landing is the oldest point on the creek, having been founded by John Cherry 54 years ago. Located below the bridge across from Croydon on Bristol ke, the landing is now operated by his sons, George and William. About 15 rowboats, many of them built by hand of white oak and cedar by William Cherry, are available for fishing.

Another 15 boats, mostly small craft, are kept at the landing during storage season. Motors are also stored here, protected by an elaborate bank-type burglar alarm system.

New outboard motors equipped with gears have brought about a revival in the number of small craft running on the creek. Traffic has become heavy enough, according to one of the yard owners, that they feel a harbor master is needed.

The small boats who speed on the water present a danger to the swimmers in the creek. Fisherman dangling lines from bridges that cross the Neshaminy also can be dangerous, not only to swimmers, but to boats as well, the owners say. Most of the boatmen who use the creek, however, are a well-mannered and considerate group. Speeding and dangerous maneuvering are not as common now as in recent years. The yachtsmen are trying to make the Neshaminy a home port that they can really call home.

development on Route 611, between Warrington and Neshaminy. According to Mr. Boehm, the building, it is expected, will be ready for occupancy by September, 1951.

Joseph Windholz, who has been treasurer of the Doylestown Maennerchor Society for the past 30 years, and a member of the organization for 54 years, was made honorary treasurer for life, at the election of officers held at the club, on Thursday.

Re-elected as president of the club is Walter J. Groman; Earl Huber, vice president; Frank L. Worthington, secretary, and manager; Julian Gady, treasurer; Elmer Harvey, trustee; sergeant-at-arms, Victor Fell.

Two new members elected to the board of governors are John T. McNeel and Nicholas Younger. Re-elected to the board are Edward Arnold, Thomas Drennan and Otis H. Doan.

By a large majority the club voted down a motion to change the by-laws to allow women to become members. By six votes, the club decided to sell the Doylestown Maennerchor Airport property, but to retain the picnic grove.

Three Sentenced After Conviction of Hold-Up dence in 1948 when the defendants robbed them of the day's receipts which amounted to nearly $2,000.

The trial was sensational because Lockrey, one of the most talkative defendants ever to appear in court, here, harranged the District Attorney, Philadelphia detectives and others.

A motion for a new trial was formally withdrawn by attorneys for Bezanis and Kayser, but Lockrey, who did not agree with his counsel, was refused a new trial by the court. No additional reasons had been filed by the defendant, Lockrey.

Lockrey served five years in the penitentiary on a manslaughter charge and was on parole when arrested for the Trevose hold-up while working in an ice cream factory.

Charges of robbery, burglary and being armed, included 15 counts. The costs of prosecution and fines of $10 each were imposed on the defendants.

United States to Press for UN Sanctions Against North Korean Reds

warning of early doom for the South Korean Republic shocked many officials and delegates.

Particularly disheartening was the stress laid on the fact that the Security Council resolution—proposed by the United States—will prove "academic" under the blows of the Communist North Koreans.

Suggestions made by the U. N. Commission for appointment of a mediator are under study by the various governments.

It was pointed out at Lake Success that the U. S. resolution, voted by nine to 0 with the abstention of Yugoslavia, opens the way for the application of a wide number of intervention steps provided under Chapter VII of the U. N. Charter. This is the chapter which deals with breaches of the peace and aggressions such as the one committed by the North Korean Communists.

Under Chapter VII, the key article—never before resorted to by U. N.—is Article 42. Assuming that the U. S. and Britain would decide to call on the Security Council for intervention by force in Korea, they could invoke this provision granting them authority to take action by land, sea or air. The Article adds:

"Such action may include demonstration, blockade, and other operations by sea, air, or land forces of U. N. members."

A preliminary step to force violators to comply with U. N. edicts under Chapter VII, is contained in Article 41, which authorizes the use of armed force. This clause defines such measures as follows:

"These may include complete or partial interruption of economic relations and of rail, sea, air, postal, telegraphic, radio and other means of communication, and the severance of diplomatic relations." (No nation outside the Soviet bloc of Cominform States have recognized the North Korean regime as valid.) Another important part of Chapter VII, is Article 45, which states that U. N. members shall hold available "national airforce contingents for combined international enforcement action."

Fines Are Imposed on 3 Bucks County Youths

PHILADELPHIA, June 27—According to records of police officers here, the youthful driver of an alleged speeding automobile was arrested after a several block chase yesterday, and two other youths, who are said to have interfered with the arresting officers, were also taken into custody.

Patrolman Joseph Sciliano reported that while cruising on Frankford avenue near city line at 115, a car cut in front of him. The officer made chase and forced the car to the side of the highway, about six blocks north at Frankford and Buttonwood avenues in Andalusia. The driver gave his name as Joseph Wilson, 20, of Hillcrest avenue, Croydon.

During questioning of Wilson, two other young men appeared. Sciliano states the two informed him they knew Wilson and demanded his release. A scuffle is said to have followed, and the patrolman radioed for help. Other police arrived and made the arrests.

Charge against Wilson is reckless driving, speeding, disorderly conduct and driving minus registration cards. The others, who are listed by police as Julius Jensen, 18, Edgington, and John Chrostek, 19, of Cornwells Heights, were charged with assault and battery on an officer, resisting arrest and disorderly conduct. All three were fined $10 and costs on the disorderly conduct charges before a local magistrate.

GRAFENWOHR, Germany, June 14 (Delayed)—Sergeant Edwin J. Termyna of Brown street, Tullytown, Pa., is instructing MDAF (Mutual Defense Assistance Program) students from Norway, The Netherlands and Denmark on the operation of all United States light and heavy infantry weapons here at the 1st Infantry Division's training center on the Czech border.

Atlantic Pact military students will return to their respective countries to teach the use of weapons received under the MDAF. Conducted tours to witness the tactical employment of infantry weapons highlights the course for the multi-lingual students. The weapons will be demonstrated by 1st Division units undergoing training on the Grafenwohr ranges.

The Tullytown soldier is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jose Termyna. He served with Military Government in Germany before joining the 1st Division, the only U. S. Infantry Division in Europe today.

Former Corps Members Have Reunion at Shore

BEACH HAVEN, N. J., June 27—Twelve former members of Bracken Post Cadet Corps, together with the first corps commander, Harry Burbank, of Mt. Holly, N. J., met at the summer home of past lieutenant commander Joseph Winslow, here, on Saturday and Sunday.

Although the affair was promulgated at the last dinner meeting of the Cadet Corps held in February in St. Mark's hall, Bristol, Pa., interests did not reach the action stage until about three weeks ago. It was then that all old cadet corps members having some record of service in the corps were contacted by mail, asking if they favored such a reunion. Many responded, but 12 members actually appeared. Regrets were received from many, due to work or former commitments.

Former commander Burbank called the meeting to order, expressing his thanks to those who still feel the good that emanates from an organization such as Bracken Post Cadet Corps, and many among those present showed red faces when he mentioned certain cadets' minor faults that had brought demerits and suspensions. Laughs were caused when he mentioned actions of these former cadets.

After a general discussion on possibility of continuing these meetings, the following officers were temporarily appointed to look into the matter: Chairman, Harry F. Burbank; vice-chairman, Joseph Winslow; secretary, John Johnson; treasurer, Minot J. Hill, Jr.

At the meeting, it was decided to accept the invitation of Fred Bell, now in business here, to visit the resort on October 7th and 8th for another get-together. It was definitely decided that those eligible to be invited to the October meeting will be all cadets having been discharged prior to 1941, or 19 years having elapsed since their discharges.

It was also definitely decided that this reunion in addition to bringing about the renewing of acquaintances, will help support the present program of Bracken Post Cadets.

After the meeting, a buffet lunch was prepared and served by Mrs. Joseph Winslow. All were guests later of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bell at their residence.

There is no way out—no escape—if we neglect the Messiah. He has come and has given us a means to salvation through His shed blood. If we refuse, what is left?

Our prayer: Our Heavenly Father lead us in the Way everlasting. As Thou has not forgotten thy covenant, let us not forget ours. Amen.

FRANKLIN TAKES UNDISPUTED GRIP ON FIRST PLACE

Franklin A. C. took undisputed possession of first place in the Bristol Softball league last evening as it scored six runs in the final inning to subdue the Fire Company No. 1 contingent, 10-8, on Leedom's field.

The firemen seemed to be coasting to an easy 7-4 triumph until the Franklin boys went on a scoring rampage in the last session, climaxed with a double by "Bill" Wallick with the bags populated with players.

The game was a heart-breaker for pitcher "Eddie" Kornichuck to lose, it being his second defeat of the season. The fire-eaters committed three errors in the final inning and these mixed with three hits and a pass gave the Franklin team its sextet of markers.

Wallick had four of the Franklin twelve hits although two were of the scratch variety. Kornichuck made two of the firemen's nine blows.

The winning chukker was "Johnny" Gallagher.

SECOND WARD STILL CLIMBS TOWARDS LEAD

Second Ward A. C. continued its climb towards first place in the Bristol Softball League with an 8-4 verdict over Fifth Ward Sporting Club last evening on Memorial Park field. It was the fifth straight win for the Second Ward team and put it in a deadlock for second place, one-half game away from the league-leaders.

Again it was the mound work of "Chick" Stansky that paved the way for the Second Warders triumph. Stansky allowed the Fifth Ward Club but five hits. Four of these, including a triple by "Brownie" Cordisco and double by "Seddie" Caro, came in the fifth frame when the losers made their quartet of runs. Stansky had eight strikeouts.

Second Ward had fourteen safe blows, Gene Barbetta had a perfect evening with a two-bagger and pair of singles in three trips to the plate. "Jim" Sottile had three for four while "Mike" Perrone had a triple and double.

The actual winning marker was manufactured with two out in the fourth with Barbetta singling to center and Stansky following with a two-bagger to the same field.

ST. ANN'S BATTERS FATTEN AVERAGES IN GAME HERE

The St. Ann's A. A. batters fattened their batting averages last evening as the "Saints" thumped the Micharski team, 11-6, in a Trenton Industrial League game on Memorial field. The victory increased the Bristol team's lead on first place to a game and one-half.

The "Saints" pounded the ball so hard that going into the fourth inning they had an 8-0 lead. Len Werner, the Micharski hurler, had little on the ball. St. Ann's hitting at will for a total of nineteen safe blows.

The Barbetta brothers, Fred, Bert and Frank took a liking to the Micharski pitching as they made nine hits among them with Fred having three for three, including a triple. Bert had two doubles and a single while Frank, the baby member of the clan, had a two-bagger and pair of singles.

Of the six hits Micharski made off Paul Leighton, three were made by Werner.
